Dear Dr. Repp:

I am pleased to inform you that you have been approved for Member status on the graduate faculty of Georgia Southern University at the Member category. A member of the Graduate Faculty at Georgia Southern University must be an active, productive, creative scholar or creative performer in his/her discipline. In order to teach graduate students how to be active scholars, practitioners, and/or performers in their own right, Graduate Faculty must be involved in the current knowledge, methods, and techniques of their disciplines. This modeling of sustained scholarship/performance is the cornerstone of quality graduate education.

There are two Categories of Graduate Faculty: Member and Affiliate. Members of the Graduate Faculty are professorial faculty on tenured or tenure-track appointments. Affiliate Graduate Faculty include research appointees, visiting, temporary, adjunct, or part-time faculty who may appropriately teach graduate classes and serve on thesis and dissertation committees. Affiliate can also be used to recognize outstanding scholars, including, but not limited to, those who work in government agencies, private industry, healthcare, and education, who are not full-time employees of Georgia Southern University whom the College of Graduate Studies welcomes to participate on thesis and dissertation committees.

The prerogatives of the two (2) categories of Graduate Faculty are listed below:

Members:

- a. Eligible to teach graduate courses.
- a. Eligible for memberships on university graduate committees.
- b. Eligible to serve on comprehensive examination committees.
- c. Eligible to direct and/or chair master's theses committees as approved by the department/school or division.
- d. Eligible to direct and/or chair doctoral dissertation committees as approved by the department/school or division.

Affiliates:

- a. Eligible to teach graduate courses.
- b. Eligible to serve on comprehensive examination committees.
- c. Eligible for membership on and/or co-chair master's theses committees as approved by the department/school or division.

- d. Eligible for membership on and/or co-chair doctoral dissertation committees as approved by the department/school or division.

Member and Affiliate graduate faculty status is granted permanently. There is no need to reapply unless one is applying for a change from affiliate to member graduate faculty status.

If you have any questions regarding your appointment to the graduate faculty, please contact the Office of the Dean of the College of Graduate Studies. Again, congratulations on your appointment.

Sincerely,

Charles J. Hardy
Professor and Acting Dean
